

Resources for Specialty Applications

Health Education England host the Specialty training website, covering the four nations: <http://specialtytraining.hee.nhs.uk/> Go here for applicant guidance, competition data and Person Specifications

When you are ready to apply, register on the Oriel recruitment portal <https://www.oriel.nhs.uk/Web/> here you will complete and submit applications, track progress, manage interviews and receive offers. All jobs will be posted here.

To explore specialties, go to the UK Health Careers website has information on the full range of medical specialties and how their programmes work. Go to <http://www.healthcareers.nhs.uk/> and search 'Specialty Training'. This site has resources to help with applications and interviews.

Specific information and short videos on Specialty Training in Wales can be found on the Wales Deanery website at <http://www.walesdeanery.org/>.

If you are a member of the BMA, you can access an e-learning module "Career Essentials – How to be successful with your application to Specialty Training (ST1)" <http://learning.bmj.com/learning/home.html>.

The Deanery host mock interview videos for Specialty and GP on: <https://learning.wales.nhs.uk/> . They are available to all trainees in Wales. You must first register on the Learning@NHSWales platform, using a valid Cardiff or Swansea University or NHS Wales email address. Click the "Courses" tab on the toolbar then look in the Occupational Knowledge and Skills section for - Selection Centres for Specialty Training.

The GMC have a series of video case studies to help you refresh and self-assess your knowledge of Good Medical Practice: <http://www.gmc-uk.org/gmpinaction/>

The BMJ Careers articles are all relevant to Specialty Recruitment and are available online at <http://careers.bmj.com/>. New articles are published all the time within the 'Non-Clinical Skills' section.